The history of the Depot

Fallon's little yellow Depot served the merchants, farmers, and passengers well from its birthplace on the south side of the railroad tracks east of North Taylor Street until the 1960's when it was closed to the public. The Depot was abandoned until the early 1980's when it was physically moved across town to Kaiser Street where it was to be remolded into a bar and restaurant. on May 1, 1987, the Depot was once again seen moving, this time to its current location on West Williams Avenue. it received a beautiful addition and was opened to the public.

How many towns do you know where they move the Depot to the people instead of the people to the Depot?

"Fallon's fine new Depot is nearly completed. it is one of the handsomest and most commodious structures of the kind in the state. it is about 225 feet overall, and the platform being 112 feet long. a sign board at each end reads"

Fallon to San Francisco 305.2 miles. Fallon to Ogden 511.2 miles. elevation 3,965 feet. it is said that C.L Noble, agent at Hasen and one of the most competent in the southern pacific service, will be installed as the agent at this place."
